

Kesteloot Excavation Scholarship

This scholarship is sponsored by the Kesteloot Family. Austin, a former teacher at Madison Central School District, is an avid advocate for trade industries and agriculture. Elisabeth, a former engineer, is passionate about providing education and awareness to the fulfilling career opportunities in the construction and engineering industries.

Kesteloot Excavation is a strong example of how hard work and ambition can lead anyone to attain their goals. Established in 2021 as part-time occupation, Kesteloot Excavation is a true Cinderella man story and has quickly grown to become a prominent earthwork company in the Madison area. This scholarship represents Austin and Elisabeth's belief in young adults—the ones who share the same ambition, big dreams, and ethics as they do.

This scholarship is available to students' pursuing majors that are relevant to the construction and civil engineering industries. Applicants also must attend school in South Dakota.

Furthermore, the Kesteloot family will consider continued financial assistance to quality candidates who seek long-term employment with Kesteloot Excavation.

Funds awarded must be used for educational expenses incurred during the fall semester following graduation. Complete the application and short answer questions.
