break through

The Lineup

No one's going to be breaking through this line of football players.

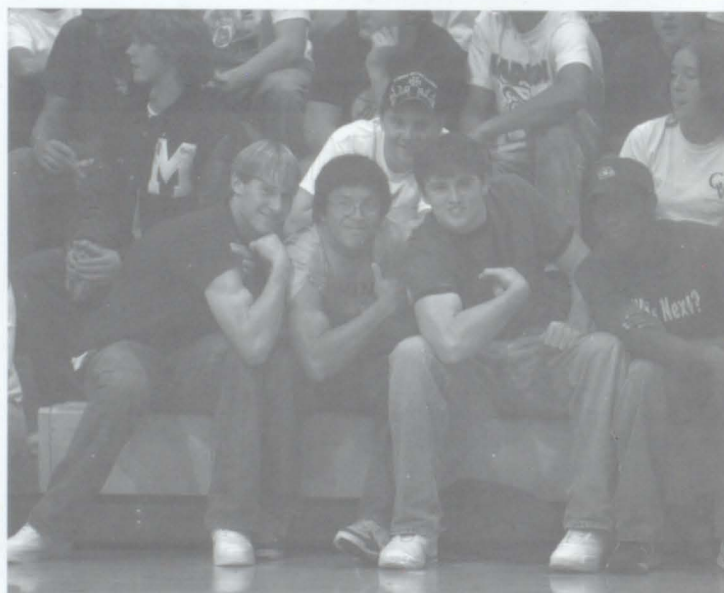

I Think I'm Getting Something

Will it be an MHS student, such as Meagan Lee, to discover the next big medical breakthrough? She thinks so.

Keeping the Peace

Pete Nelson and Ben Johnson might be on to something with their message . . . PEACE OUT!

Showing Off

With their toned arms, you wouldn't push Nathan Dailing, Charles Wallowing Bull Jr., or Corey Fjerstad to their breaking point.

Breaking through. In figurative terms, a break through is a rapid turn in events that permits those involved to progress into new areas of learning and understanding. With time and new knowledge, one's viewpoints and perspectives are continually altered to accommodate new discoveries. So it is with us as we discover ourselves. As high school students, for four years, we attend classes and walk through halls where we meet the people who develop and shape our stories as well as our beings. In a literal sense, the action of breaking through is simply overcoming a barrier or restraint. For us, this barrier is conformity, dullness, and all of those things we attempt every day to overcome by learning more about ourselves by experiencing the world around us. Piece by piece, break through by break through, we grasp a greater hold of who we are and are able to break through into our own new realities, as we leave the halls that helped us, made us, and saw us break through.

Fan Club

Student Parking

MHS students are good at a lot of things . . . parking is not one of them, although some might consider it a talent to connect what should be two different rows of parking. Kudos to those who yield to yellow lines.

THE STARS OF "HOLLYWOOD"

La La La...

After Sam Johnson was crowned homecoming King, the football cheerleaders - Candice DeVaney, Erica Christoph, Chelsey Christiansen, Keleah Goldammer, Amber Cole and Krista Even - serenade him with a song.

2004-2005 Homecoming Royalty

Along with King, Sam Johnson and Queen, Katie Terwilliger, royalty includes: Zach Hatting, Amy Zervas, Callin Haar, Brittany Rymerson, Johnny Friedow, Kendall Hill, Nathan Stearns, and Whitney White.

Bringing In The Game Ball

The cross country team gets involved in homecoming by running in the game ball and presenting it to King, Sam Johnson and Queen, Katie Terwilliger.

Ohhh...

Johnny Friedow plays his guitar while singing during the talent show at coronation.

Thank You Very Much

Sam Johnson gives his victory speech after being crowned King while mistress of ceremonies, Michelle Cundy, listens.

Mr. Thoughtful

The Party Has Arrived

Wearing the right clothes is important for any high schooler's social success. Zach Hatting, Nick Parsley, and Callin Haar demonstrate how important fashion can be.

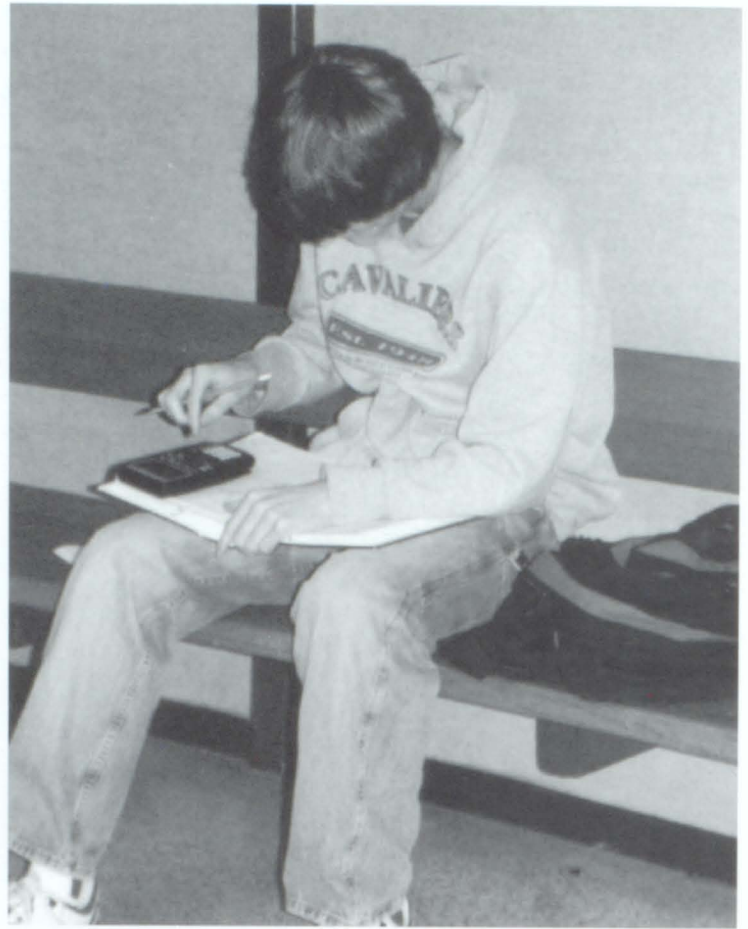

No Pressure

Brooke Postma, Amy Zervas, Brittany Postma, and Katie Satter are pros at competing under pressure. The four were nominated for an award in National Girls & Women in Sports.

here's to the night

PROM 2005

On April 16, MHS held their annual Prom. Thanks to mother nature the weather was a bit chilly but sunny overall.

The students and their dates enjoyed good music and great decorations. The King, Ian Alverson, and the Queen, Krista Even, were astonished when their names were called by the Master of Ceremonies, Mr. Peterson.

After Prom was full of great fun too. The students who attended enjoyed a velcro wall, razor bikes, free gifts and much more. The hypnotist was able to get many of the students under his spell. The laugh of the night was the students doing YMCA.

Relaxing

Mr. Garry takes a break from decorating and watches Amber Jerke and Jill Bickett finish the light poles.

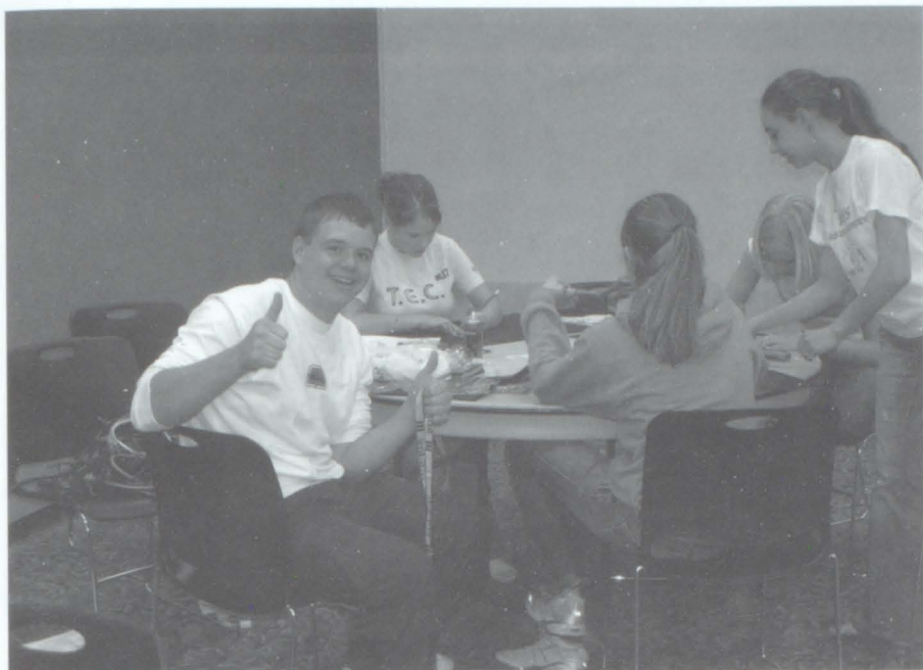

Prom King and Queen

The Prom King Ian Alverson and Queen Krista Even look surprised after Mr. Peterson announces who the Prom royalty is.

I'm Cool . . .

Gavin Fawbush sits and relaxes while Kasey Schmidt, Grace Hatting, Miranda Johnson do all the work.

Dancing

Many students including Lucas Tolley and Alyssa Klapperich enjoy dancing at the Prom.

Dancing The Night Away

Eric Lee and Christine Knapp enjoy a slow dance and each other's company.

That's One BIG Limo

Twenty-four MHS students and dates enjoy cruising around town in this Excursion Limo. Prom goers are: Tim Summerer, Mallory Nelson, Kevin Smith, Sally Thayer, Adam Cameron, Jessie Cole, Charlie Kenyon, Rose Decker, Jon Barrick, Kim Swain, Izaak Goldammer, Amber Cole, Coty Alverson, Cali Seitz, Danny Heirigs, Chelsey Christiansen, Brenden Wetzberger, Krista Even, Dallas Tucker, Beth Petrone, Sara Fedeler, Ian Alverson, Keleah Goldammer, and Julian Hernandez.

REACHING NEW "HORIZONS"

Downtime

They may look like they are resting, but Ben Grassel, Jill Bickett, Eric Threadgold, Heidi Mogck, Jordan Walker, Ashley Hanson, and Nate Hoffman know it is part of the routine.

It all starts in early August - the memorization of new music and routines, the early mornings, and the hot afternoons. But it is worth the sacrifice! The finished product - a polished routine - is performed over and over for judges, family members and fans. What do band members remember - the thrill of the crowd's applause, the bus rides, keeping track of your uniform, flag, instrument, etc., and all the fun you have with your band friends.

STATE SUPERIOR AWARD WINNERS

The tradition of amazing theatrical excellence continued yet again this year through our thespians' performance of a more eccentric theatre piece, Wiley and the Hairy Man. This performance validated any accusations that the actors of the One-Act cast of MHS are unpleasant, uncivilized, dirty, and rude. . . or at least their acting was good enough to convince their audiences and judges. At State, the crew earned top honors, receiving a Superior rating and raving reviews.

THE MONKEY TRIAL

Opposing Forces

Two of the greatest lawyers of their time, Johnny Friedow and Charlie Kenyon, will square off in the greatest trial of all time.

"Inherit The Wind" was a play depicting the 1925 case of John Scopes, a high school science teacher charged with illegally teaching evolution. "The Monkey Trial", as it came to be known, began a culture war that still rages in America. The main theme of the play is not evolution, but the freedom to think.

Comments From The President

Local Chapter President, Laura Sunde, gives the audience her comments at the annual banquet.

The Maroon

After producing six issues and facing the dreaded smackdown of the editing staff (mostly from Mr. Lynch), the staff of The Maroon were bonded together to form lifelong friendships. With the combination of political rants, symposiums, and "The Zany Circus Corner," another year of the paper was certainly a success. Co-editors Brenden Wetzbarger and Kelsey Campbell forced their wrath upon other staff members and slaved away working on layout, noon after noon. The Maroon isn't only about hard work, however. Meetings and the end of the year pizza party were fun and seeing your name in print makes being a staffer worthwhile!

Hard At Work or Hardly Working?

Scott Splonskowski, Spencer Daniels, and Nate Hoffman goof around during the year-end pizza party. Scott, the brains behind "Maroon Madness", discusses next year's game plan.

Spazzing Out

Clearly, the team needs a break after a tough practice at the Madison Golf Course. The weather did not cooperate with the plans of a hard practice, so the team decides to master other arts, such as puddle diving and mud wrestling. The team: (back) Justin Schrepel, Jordan Walker, Bobby Johnson, Kristina Kotzerke, Tonia Even Clarice Bauer, Marissa Nelson, SaRena Freet, Amanda Uthe, Christine Banks, Abby Logan, Carly Johnke, Miranda Johnson, Tyler Patch, Alex Haiar, Justin Jaspers, Phillip Downs, Kellie Kreul, Mallory Nelson, Sally Thayer, Trevor Johnson, Jeremy Rud, and Emily Steffensen.

boys & girls cross country

The 2004 cross country team had a yet another year to make the parents proud. The boys' varsity team headed off to the state meet, taking home more hardware for the team's legacy, adding the 3rd place trophy to the collection. Justin Jaspers took 4th place in the pool of class A runners, with Devon Berkness not far behind at 26th. When the team was asked about their favorite memories, Mallory Nelson said, "My best memory was watching the team spaz out during a stormy practice on the golf course— everybody just started body sliding down the hills." Otherwise, the general consensus was that the high a runner gets after they have completed their race is unmatched and worth all the season's hard work and self discipline.

business strategies

Create A Professional Sports -Then What?

The final project of the Business Strategies class was to take on the task of creating a Business Plan for a new professional sports franchise. Groups of three to four students, chose a professional sport and a major city to locate their team. The more difficult task was to make the franchise a financial success, even if the performance of the team is unsuccessful. Students were assigned to these Vice President positions: Player Personnel, Marketing, Facility Design and Management, and Public and Community Relations. In order for their franchise to be successful, students must work together in facing the trials and tribulations that are so much a part of the sports industry today. The class had four teams: the Las Vegas Vipers, a baseball team; the San Diego Demons, a basketball team; the Oklahoma City Lizards, a football team; and the Los Angeles Colts, another football team. Because the class had two football teams, they even had to have a draft day. Teams needed to stay within the leagues salary cap when drafting players. City codes needed to be followed when designing facilities. Souvenirs, logos, uniforms, food and public relation days needed to be designed and marketed. The final Business Plans were presented in multimedia presentations.

Overconfident?

Andy Ahern, Tim Summerer, Jay Houser, Ian Alverson, Mr. Hodgen, Torstan Aumann, Kevin Smith, Dallas Tucker, Nick Parsley, Brenden Wetzberger, Nathan Stearns, Zach Hattling, and Sally Thayer, with paddles in hand, look unconcerned with the nautical problems they are about to face.

getting physical

Like a bird with her young, so was Mr. Hodgen and this year's physics class—first learning the basics, and then being let out into the world of application and practicality. With thirteen senior students, the presence of intelligence is inferred. The focus, however, can sometimes fall short of perfection, but with Mr. Hodgen's "tough guy" approach to teaching, the class learned the science behind motion through weekly labs and experiments. Many eggs, test tubes, and cardboard boxes were broken, but the end result was a better understanding of our physical existence.

Tim Summerer, Jay Houser, Sally Thayer, and Nathan Stearns press on despite their realization of their boats' shortcomings.

The Unsinkable Titanic

Zach Hatting demonstrates the art of duct taping on his group's canoe. Zach and Brenden's efforts finished second place, behind the massive "train" design of Andy Ahern, Torstan Aumann, and Ian Alverson. Who'da thunk it? ...or should we say, Who'da sunk it?

cardboard boat regatta

For the school's first annual cardboard boat regatta, the students spent the last few weeks of school plotting and preparing their designs, using only cardboard, glue, and tape. With the threat of frigid Lake Herman water as incentive to take their cardboard designs seriously, some experienced success, while others were harshly awakened to their misjudgments of the physics behind floating.

Don't Worry, We Can Still Win

The raft design of Nathan Stearns and Sally Thayer seems to be failing their expectations. It seems they may have misjudged the appropriate size of boat for their bodies.

breaking barriers

We Survived!

Sally Thayer, Kevin Smith, Krista Even, Brenden Wetzberger, Dallas Tucker, and Jennifer Booze, students of the last trimester of AP Spanish, smile in front of the falls on their field trip to Sioux Falls. They visited the Mexican market and experienced authentic Mexican cuisine. (Not pictured: Nic Grayson)

SPANISH PROGRAM COVERS A VARIETY OF MATERIAL

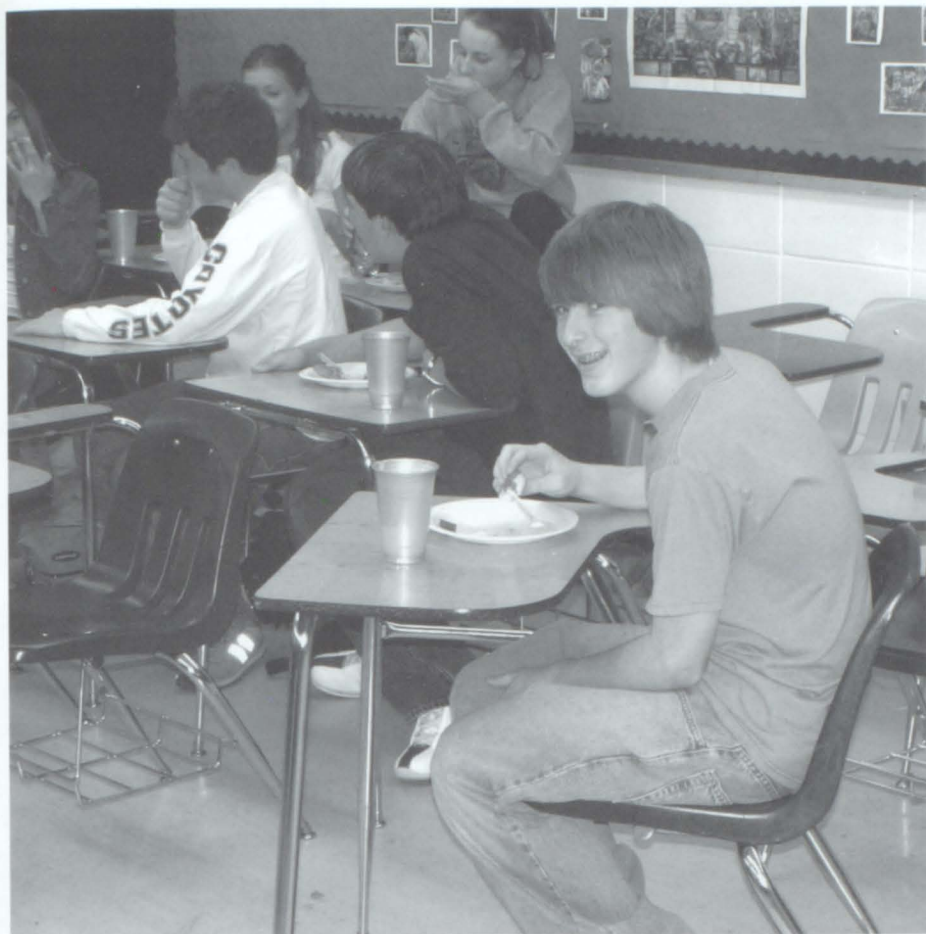

While the word Spanish might immediately bring thoughts of verb charts and vocab lists to mind, this word also encompasses multitudes of cultural richness to be learned. This endless array of learning material probably accounts for the variety of teaching tactics of Senora Lynch . . . from reproducing paintings of Hispanic artists, traveling to the Mexican market, teaching second graders, ordering food in Spanish at Incas, ordering doughnuts from Gary's in English, completing weekly workbook assignments, playing competitive games of Trivial Pursuit, Compatibility, and Catch Phrase in Spanish, and of course cooking Spanish foods and making videos

The last trimester of AP Spanish had only seven students willing to brave the final few months of this brain-draining subject. The small class allowed them to have a more interactive class setting. The classes of Spanish I-III, also had several endearing qualities to keep the students coming back — like crazy Spanish videos and mouth watering “culture” days. Ultimately, after years of gaining confidence to step out into the unknown, much more than verb charts were learned.

I Love Churros!

Amanda Jung savors the taste of the fried churro. Muy bueno!

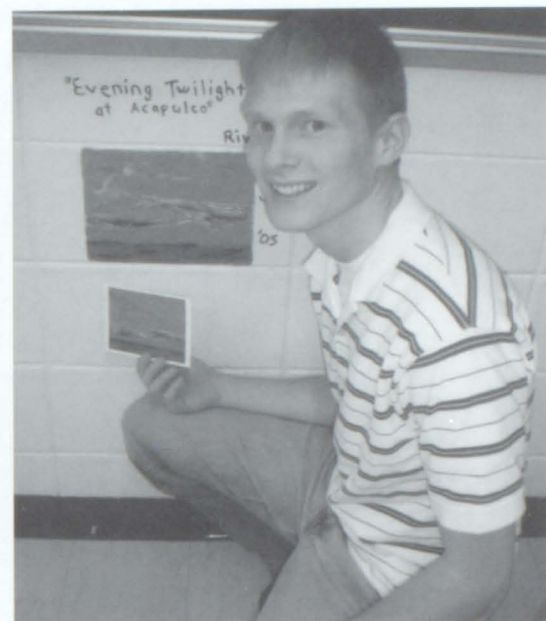

"Culture" Days

The Spanish I class enjoys the benefits of a "hands on" education in Spanish culture. Here, Jordan Johnson learns about Mexican egg rolls. Huevos, anyone?

Kevin Rivera

Besides the red hair, Kevin Smith would be able to fool even the toughest critic that he is truly the real Diego Rivera with this stellar painting. Other artists represented on the walls of the Spanish classroom were Botero, Yepes, Miro, and Dali.

Competition or School Spirit?

Pennies For Pounds

As a fund-raiser for the Berkah House (a home for AIDS patients in Sioux Falls), FCCLA members challenged all first period classes to bring in pennies for the pounds that they weigh. The winning class would get a prize. Mrs. Olson's Business Law Class became very competitive with the Administration. In the end, when the spying and accusations were over, Mrs. Olson's class won, collecting $201.29. Administration was second raising $127.87. Stuart Elliott brought in the most from one person, $109.96. A total of $810.91 was collected and donated to the Berkah House.

Individual Winner

Stuart Elliott donated the most pennies from one person.

They Should Look Real

Mr. Larson does his best to try to make the lights on the light post look real for prom night.

Colophon

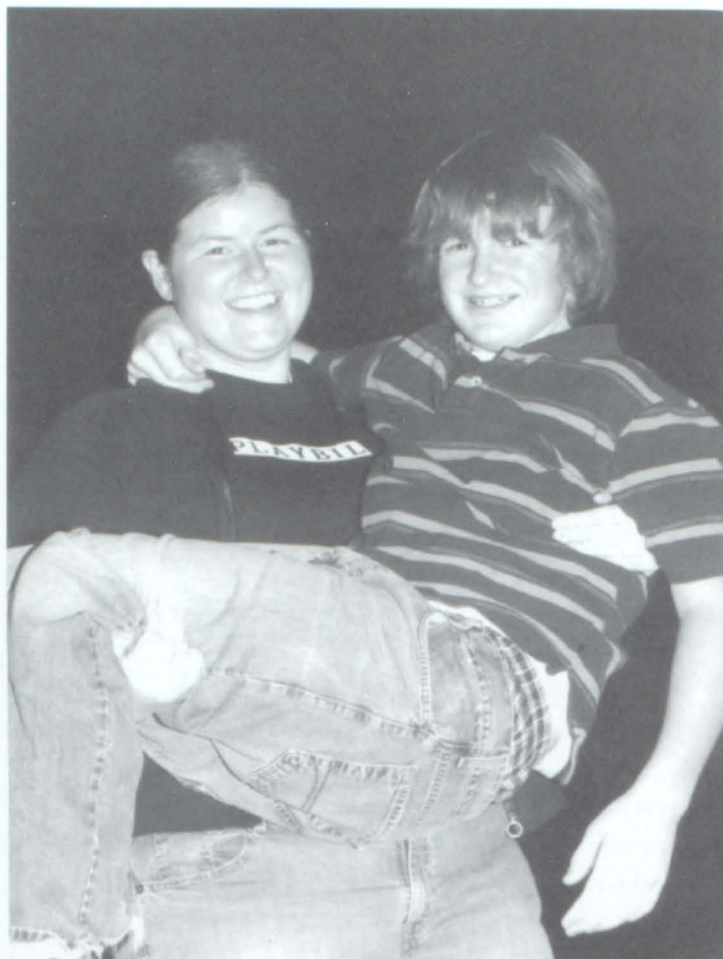

The 2005 yearbook was produced by a staff of ten students and one advisor using Windows XP and PageMaker 7.0. The books were printed by the Leader Printing Company and the press run was 245 books of 112 pages each. Books were sold for $35, $40, and $50. Sally Thayer was the editor. Kristie Olson was the advisor. Special thanks to Jill Johnson for sharing her photos and all others who helped with the production.
